A highway historical marker is set at Third and Farrington streets, in the center of the median of U.S. Highway 41, directing tourists to site at First and Farrington, directly west. Another state historical marker is placed at the front entrance of the house.

The City of Terre Haute and the Vigo County Historical Society felt it was important to save for posterity an excellent example of the type of dwelling of the working man of Terre Haute of the pre-Civil War period. The fact that Paul Dresser(original name Dreiser) was born in the house gave it additional importance from the local and state history angle. He wrote Indiana's state song "On The Banks of the Wabash, Far Away." As one of the most noted popular song writer of the Gay Nineties, Paul Dresser gained national and international fame as the "King of Tin Pan Alley."

It was felt the house was worth saving by the Indiana Historical Society as it was so typical of the working man's home before the Civil War. A restoration of this period(1859) was unique in the state. Only mansions or log cabins had been preserved up to this time. The Indiana General Assembly has proclaimed the house as a State Shrine & State Memorial.
